The six weeks at Yale University is the most wonderful experience in my life. Great teachers, great friends from all over the world at a great university make it a great summer.

There was much daily homework after class, so I had to manage my time efficiently. There were also many extracurricular activities every day. After finishing the homework, I could enjoy my time with friends and practice speaking English.

The regular courses are reading class, writing class and speaking class. Student's English skills could be improved and enhanced in these regular courses. Most of reading and writing assignment is from the regular courses.

Besides the regular courses, English Language Institute also provides students with afternoon elective classes. Students are supposed to choose at least one afternoon elective class. Both of the two classes I chose were interesting; they are video production and experience New Haven. In the video production class, my group made a short experimental film concerned children with ADD. We made all the parts of the film from
